

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE 10th ANNIVERSARY OF THE FUNDATION OF THE NATIONAL ANTHROPOLOGICAL ARCHIVES

On the occasion of the 10th anniversary of the National Anthropological Archives, the Smithsonian Institution is pleased to announce the publication of a commemorative book. This book, edited by Dr. John W. Starna, will provide a comprehensive overview of the Archives' history and its ongoing commitment to the preservation and accessibility of the Smithsonian's anthropological collections. The book will be available for purchase from the Smithsonian Store.

For more information or to purchase the book, please contact the Smithsonian Store at (202) 636-0500 or visit our website at www.smithsonianstore.com.

The National Anthropological Archives is a part of the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History. The Archives' collections consist of a wide variety of anthropological materials, including archaeological excavations, ethnographic records, and historical documents. The Archives' primary mission is to preserve these collections and to provide access to them for researchers and the public alike. We are proud to have reached our 10th anniversary and look forward to continuing our work in the future.

The National Anthropological Archives (NAA) is a part of the Smithsonian Institution's National Museum of Natural History. The NAA's collections consist of a wide variety of anthropological materials, including archaeological excavations, ethnographic records, and historical documents. The NAA's primary mission is to preserve these collections and to provide access to them for researchers and the public alike. We are proud to have reached our 10th anniversary and look forward to continuing our work in the future.